SCENTS WITH SENSE

Yes, this Sana Jardin Sandalwood Temple Eau de Parfum is £180 for 100ml, but listen. The waste from its production is upcycled by seasonal female workers, who sell their products locally and retain 100% of the profits. Sustainable beauty. We're sold.

MOOD BOARD

FRAGRANCE & HAIR

TO HAVE AND TO MOULD

Crushing on a crop right now? Sachajuan Fibre Paste, £22 (above), will make even the thickest, most coarse hair malleable and subtly shiny. Take the chop.

POWER OF THREE

Ignore the gendered label for Etro's Man Rose EDP, £118 for 100ml, and trust us when we say it smells good on everyone.

The bottle for My Burberry Blush EDP, £99 for 90ml, takes inspiration from the buttons of the label's iconic trench. It can be monogrammed online, too.

Marc Cain's first foray into beauty brings us three scents called Mysteriously. The best is the rose and cinnamon-infused No. 1 EDP, £72 for 80ml.

LØRE UNTO ITSELF

Healthy hair starts at the scalp.

Created by the team at cool London salon Taylor Taylor, Løre Originals' Cleanse & Purify, £18 (right), incorporates prickly pear and sea salt to exfoliate the scalp and encourage cell renewal.

THE FEMALE GLOSS

The Evo Spike 22mm hairbrush, £34.95 (above), is your hair's equivalent of a valet service. As you brush, the nylon pins literally polish the hair follicles. The result is your shiniest hair ever.
